Supporting Our Troops

Who we are...

Operation Veronica has been supporting our Troops from behind our sewing machines since 2005. An idea that began that we need to keep on with our mission because we hear repeatedly from those brave men and women that the packages are appreciated – as much for their contents as with a few neck coolers when the temperatures in Iraq and Afghanistan reached 135 degrees soon grew to include neck warmers when those temps dropped to freezing in the winter months. And now Survival Bracelets are added. From that quiet start, we have grown to include all manner of comfort items with our weekly shipments. We know for sure they are for the message they convey – your actions are appreciated, you are prayed for and we support you. Since our start, we have shipped over 300,000 handmade items to Troops serving us far from home. We are honored to perform this service.

At Operation Veronica we find that the same brave men and women who stand between us and the evil in the world are also the most humble. While we consider them heroes, they repeatedly admonish us that they are simply “doing their jobs”. We simply disagree.

We are ever mindful that, as the protected, we are indebted to them – and yet they thank us!

"The gifts you sent will keep us warm and reminded of the prayers and support we are receiving from you all back home. This simple gesture will go a long way in our hearts. It is my pleasure to defend this great nation with people like you backing us from home.

With Thanks, Sgt Hughley,

We have been fortunate to be invited to participate in the many charities that the American Troops have begun in the villages they protect. We have participated in programs such as Operation Backpack. This program, instituted by the men and women of the US Army, began schools for the children of Afghanistan in 30 year old UN tents. We shipped backpacks filled with school supplies

We also have sent thousands of Beanie Babies to the Troops so that they might share them with the children they meet. The Troops we ship to in Djibouti spend their free time at local orphanages, making repairs and rocking babies!

This is the American Soldier.

Supporting our Troops far from home is expensive. The cost of materials for what we make, purchase to ship and the shipping itself continues to rise. Any donation made to Operation Veronica goes into the package 100%. Our meeting space is donated and our efforts are completely uncompensated

If you are looking for any way to support the men and women of the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marines, please contact us.

"Dear Operation Veronica, I would like to begin by saying that you have been a true blessing to our battalion. These soldiers have been really touched by your generosity and support to our mission. It is people like you that make this deployment a little bit easier. God Bless you for your support of our brave soldiers.

Sincerely, Capt. Michael W.

3-227 Battalion Chaplain

Thank you for your support of our Troops
